FROM THE PASTOR

Throughout the summer, I have read the book of Proverbs several times. It's pretty great how there are enough chapters in the book to align with each day of the month. It amazes me how relevant the passages are, even thousands of years later. While reading them, I couldn't help but think about trust, faith and guidance.

Pilots must have trust and faith in their instruments to guide them. The artificial horizon is a line that stays level with the earth's surface and indicates when the wings are banking left or right. This instrument revolutionized flying, but when it was first invented, many pilots resisted using it. The biggest problem they had was belief. They trusted their feelings more than their instruments.

In the Christian life, Scripture, God, Jesus and the Holy Spirit all act as our primary flight instrument. Our feelings can mislead us, and tell us things that aren't true. But God's guidance through Scripture tells us the Truth. May we rely on the Truth.

As always, I look forward to seeing you, especially in worship.

Pastor Robert
